Makes Remarkable Speech at Lincoln Day Banquet in Grand Rapids, Michigan.

SUPERIORITY OF THE WHITES

GBy Associated Press.)

GRAND RAPIDS, MICH., Feb. 12.—The annual Lincoln day banquet under the auxilices of the two Republican clubs of this city colleged in point of attendance and the notable guests present all former successes achieved by the organization. Baron von Sternburg, the German embassador, responded to the toast "The German Emperor."

The last speaker of the evening was John S. Wise, formerly of Virginia, but now of New York. He responded to the test "The South and the Colored Man."

Mr. Wise said: When Lincoln was assistanted he had said but little and done nothing to warrant any confident statement of the position he would have taken if he had lived, upon tile question of negre surrage.

Hhe was pre-eminently fitted, by familiarity with the condition of the black race by his knowledge of the relations between the races in the South and by the concitution of his heart and mind, to deal with the great problem.

The loss of his guidance upon this question was irreparable to the whole country North as well as South.

After his death the Republican party, under other leaders, decided to bestow uniestricted suffrage upon the negre and to guarantee Federal protection of this right.

Thirty-seven years have passed since this condition of reconstruction was interested these condition of reconstruction was interested these condition of reconstruction was interested the condition of reconstruction was interested to the condition of the condition was interested the condition of reconstruction was interested to the condition of the condition was interested the condition of reconstruction was in uniestricted suffrage upon the negro and 15 guirantee Federal protection of that 15 guirantee federal protection was limposed, and the fourteenth and fifteenth amendments were adopted to make the picuge effectual.

The white man in the North to-day is mine in sympathy with the white man in the South than with any black man. North or South. The whites of Maine, of Massachuletts, of Ohlo, of fowa, resard their white Southern brother as a flierdly fellow citizen. Their nature, contended to the contended their white Southern brother as a flierdly fellow citizen. Their nature, contended to the contended that men of their own race may be dominated politically by the pent race in any stater state.

Conditions do not display this prefudice as prominently in the North as in the Bouth, but it is just as apparent there, own if not as violent.

Community of frace creates affinities between while men, which hind them to getter everywhere and are not weakened by any arguments of humanity or philanthropy. Under the surface of all academ its fluments of the surface of all academis affurners as suments of humanity or philanthropy. Under the surface of all academis affurners and the white men of the North that laws which logisly lead to a negro supermacy in any State are right as to convince the majority of Southern whites that such laws are just.

We must deal with the question as we find it.

We cannot eliminate from it the dominant factor of race prefudice. We may were the weather the metalled in the South as we must deal with the question as we may be a served the server of the considerability. The south as a negligible quantity. If the South as an engligible quantity. If the South had no voice, either in the majking or adminible quantity. If the South had no voice, either in the majking or adminible quantity. If the South had no voice, either in the majking or adminible quantity. If the South had no readednee in the North, that any portity which should advecate a basis of stirrage the legical outcome of which would be the glate of the Union, would be voerwhelmingly defeated in the North. The thing which would defeat it would be the racial sympathy of whites for whites—a sympathy now undative tween the whites—a sympathy now undative tween the whites themselves.

I repeaks as the student of a nocial problem, in the light of that study. I cannot have repeated the proposition to surrender, or even the whites themselves.

pefore the people of Virginia at this time than that which relates to the selection of text-books for the public schools of the State for the next four years, and it is understood that the discussion in the recent meeting of the State Board of Education held here on the subject was vigorous on both sides and at times very

It has been learned from thoroughly reliable sources that from the inception to the end Governor Montague took a told stand against the delegation of the authority of selection by the State Board to any committee or local board, and that throughout His Excellency led a vigorous battle along these lines. The position taken by the Governor was almost identically that taken by Senator Keezell in the latter's resolution on the subject/in the Senate the other day, declaring for the direct selection by the State Board, and for the adoption of a single rather than a multiple list.

MAY MOVE TO RESCIND. While the Governor does not care to discuss the matter, it may be stated that it would cause no surprise among those who are in close touch with him should he at the next meeting of the board move to rescind the former action of the body and renew his battle for cirect selection by the State Board and for the single list.

It is known that the Governor believes that it was the clear intent of the framers of the Constitution to have the State Board select the text-books, where they provided that technical education should be placed on the body. It is learned that supporting the Governor in his fight was Dr. Charles W. Kent, of the University of Virginia.

SOME WERE ABSENT.

There were several members absent from the last meeting, and if there shall be a full attendance when the body converces again it is not unlikely that there may be a rescinding of the resolution recently adopted.

recently adopted.

Senator Keezell said last night that he heped to see his resolution pass, not by any manner of means as an instruction to the board, but simply as an expression on the point of the legislative branch of the government for what he believed to be best for all the people of the State.

It was said last night that a great deal of lobbying is being done against the Keezell resolution, which is now pending in the Senato, though it has some able champions on the floor of the body.

FAMOUS VIRGINIANS.

Mr. Sheppard Completes Portraits of Hon. John Goode and Others. L. Sheppard has just finished

Aft. W. Salephan has a several oil portraits of famous Virginians, among whom is no less beloved a man than Hon. John Goode, president of the recent Constitutional Convention.

These are now in the State Library, at least temporarily, and are handsome pieces of work. The paintings which were framed yesterday were of Governor Nicholas, of Virginia, from the original owned by Mrs. Dabney Carr; Edmund Pendleton, after a miniature from life, by Thomas Sully; John Y. Mason, from the original, owned by Mrs. Archer Anderson, of this city, and Hon. John Goode. The portrait of the latter is a speaking likeness. The snow-white hair, the kindly, paternal face, the overhanging brow, so well known to all the people of the State, have been admirably portrayed.

The question of erecting a bridge over the river on the site of Mayo's Bridge was referred to the Finance Committee, and that body will meet for its discussion on Monday night, so a report may be made to the board on Tuesday night. It necessary a joint session will be called to take final action.

REPUBLICAN CONVENTION.

Manchester Republicans met at Leader Hail on Thursday night and elected delegates to the district convention at West Point, and to the State convention at Norfolk. The former meets on March 1st, and the latter two days later. The delegates were the same in each instance—Mcssrs. W. R. Beattle and T. H. Smith. The meeting was a representative one, with not a negro present. Resolutions endorsing the President, sympathizing with Mr. Hanna, and recommending Marshal Treat as a delegate to the national convention were adopted.

The meeting was considered a "red hot" one and harmonious. Expressions of "sympathy at the condition of the Republican 'party in Richmond" were made. REPUBLICAN CONVENTION.

He finally crawled into a barn. His shoes were frozen to his feet, icycles clung to his trousers and his beard. With great difficulty he romoved his shoes and socks and finally went to sleep. When he awoke it was time to move on, but his shoes were still full of ice, and it was impossible to get them on. Six o'clock, bitter and stinging cold, as was the air, found him at the residence of Mr. R. H. Canfield, about six miles below Richmond. His frozen shoes and socks were under his arm; he had trang at a long distance in the snow with hit re feet.
